GERMANS GAIN BEFORE VERDUN

French Positions Two Miles Long Taken

Italians Beat Off Austrians in Desperate Fighting

Russian Line Penetrated, Teutons Then Repelled

LONDON, May 30—Another German onslaught, following up the success of Sunday night, has pushed the French out of their advanced positions on a considerable front west of Cumieres. Berlin's report, that positions were taken along the entire extent between Dead Man Hill and Cumieres, indicates a loss of two miles of trenches. The Germans declare they captured 1348 prisoners. A further advance in Thiaumont wood, east of the Meuse, is also claimed.

Paris admits the loss of some advanced trenches south of the road between Bethincourt and Cumieres, under "very strong attack," by a new division recently arrived on the scene. On the southern boundary of Cumieres the French stood firm, though vigorously attacked.

The Austrians have resumed the offensive in the Posina zone, attacking the Italian positions south of that river after violent artillery preparations, but according to tonight's official statement from the Italian War Office were unable to dislodge the defenders.

Russian troops have repelled a German advance at Augustinhof and have thrown back Austrians who penetrated the Russian lines in Galicia.

Sweeping German Gain

Germany's official report reads:

"Western front—Artillery duels are continuing along the front between La Bassee Canal and Arras. Lens again was bombarded. In the neighborhood of Souchez (Artois District) and southeast of Tahure (Champagne) weak enemy advances failed.

"South of the Corbeaux and Cumieres woods we captured French positions along the entire extent between the southern ridge of Dead Man Hill and Cumieres Village. Thirty-five officers, including several staff officers, and 1313 unwounded men were captured. Two counter attacks against Cumieres Village were repelled.

"East of the Meuse we improved upon our newly captured line in the Thiaumont wood.

"Eastern Front, Southern Lipsk—Some German detachments advanced across the Sczara and destroyed a Russian blockhouse position.

"Balkan Front—German and Bulgarian fighting forces, to protect themselves after surprise attacks which apparently were planned by the Entente troops, occupied the length of a ridge on the Struma, which is an important position in this connection. Our superiority in numbers forced the Greek forces to retreat. Otherwise Greek territorial rights were respected."

Heavy Cannonade Succeeds Battle

The official communication issued by the French War Office tonight says:

"On the left bank of the Meuse the bombardment has been very violent in the region of La Mort Homme and Cumieres.

"The activity of the artillery has been moderate on the right bank of the Meuse and in the Woevre."

The British official communication issued at midnight says the Germans shot down a British aeroplane and a German machine was brought down within the German lines.

"During the night we successfully exploded a mine southeast of Cuinchy. Two German mines near Souchez and northeast of Neuville-St Vaast failed to do appreciable damage to our trenches," it is declared.

"Today (Tuesday) was quiet. There were no infantry actions and little artillery activity. North of the Lys our counter batteries engaged successfully the enemy's artillery near Messines."

Italians Hold Line in Bitter Fight

The official account from Rome asserts that the situation generally is unchanged except in the Posina zone and the upper Astico, where there was a renewal of the Austrian offensive.

"In the Lagarina Valley," says the bulletin, "and in the Pasubio section there was an intense artillery duel and great activity. Enemy convoys were disturbed by our fire.

"South of Posina, the enemy, following a violent artillery preparation, attacked in the direction of Soglia di Campiglia and Mount Piafora. After a desperate struggle our troops retain these positions."

On the Asiago plateau and in the Sugana Valley reconnoitering parties have been active. The Austrians are bombarding Osnedaleppo. On Monte San Michele the Italians exploded a powerful mine, breaching a considerable extent of trenches.

A Berlin wireless dispatch quotes a correspondent with the Austrian Army as saying: "The fighting in the southern Tyrol has evolved into a mobile campaign." The Austrian attack resulted in the formation of a curving front, an advance along which provided an increasing number of sectors, which could be menaced by outflanking movements and taken under a crossfire.

"In the course of a few days the Austro-Hungarians regained a large part of the terrain which they had given up voluntarily at the beginning of the war, and in addition crossed the enemy's frontier at several points."

Russians Beat Off Teuton Attacks

Petrograd announces that a German assault northeast of Augustinhof, after artillery preparations, was stopped, and the Germans were driven back to their trenches

Near Gliadki in Galicia the Austrians opened a violent fire and at the same time attempted an infantry offensive. "Having driven back our advance post, the enemy exploded two of our mine galleries which were not completely charged," says the report. "Reinforcements hurried to the spot and dislodged the Austrians by a counter attack, recaptured the post and restored the previous situation.

"Caucasus front: The situation is unchanged."

The Bulgarians are fortifying the Demi-Hissar section and other forces are concentrating at Nevrokop in Bulgaria. Germans accompanied the Bulgars who seized the Greek forts. It is said the Greek retreat was due to a secret agreement between Greece and Bulgaria. Artillery fire and patrol engagements continue on the advanced lines.

Turks Capture 24 Englishmen

Constantinople reports:

"In the Felahie sector, on the right bank of the Tigris, our artillery silenced two guns of the enemy. In a surprise attack on the same bank we captured 24 Englishmen."

On the Caucasian front patrol fighting occurred. In the Smyrna sector Turkish guns drove off three airmen over Phokie.

The British force under Brig Gen Northey, which is invading German East Africa from the southwest, and, yesterday was reported 20 miles within German territory near Lake Targanika, has taken Langenberg, north of Lake Niassa, with large quantities of ammunition, food and stores.

ROOSEVELT TERMS ATTACK TRIVIAL

The secretary was riding in the front seat of the car. Suddenly a knife with one blade measuring about three inches struck his arm a glancing blow. The knife slipped to the ground, where Ernest Shell, a member of the American Legion, escorting the former President, picked it up and handed it to a policeman. The officer had not reported the incident tonight and the knife had not been recovered.

Royal Welcome Given

Kansas City gave the colonel a real Western reception. From the moment he reached the Union Station until he arose in Convention Hall to fulfill his part as the city's Memorial Day orator, his time was taken up by ceremonies arranged in his honor.

A great crowd greeted the ex-President in Union Station plaza, and 100 motorcars escorted him to his hotel. Before the ex-President's car marched members of the American Legion and Civil War veterans. Behind came the Naval Militia and ex-Navy and Army men.

When his car passed the yellow decorated motor cars packed along the way bearing banners marked "Votes for Women!" Col Roosevelt waved his hat and shouted "Hurrah, Hurrah."

Greeted by Little Girls

As Col Roosevelt mounted the steps to the hotel lobby he was greeted by 100 little girls, ranging from 4 to 10 years, dressed in costumes resembling draped flags. When the Colonel came into view the children began to sing "America, I Love You."

"I would have been glad to have come all the way to Kansas City just for this reception," the colonel told them.

"On this day of all others I want to appeal to the great West for patriotism," he said, "I want to appeal to men I know will stand right if the appeal to help our country is made to them in the right way. I'm not in the least afraid of the patriotism of American people. What I'm afraid of is that there may be a lack of preparedness in advance."

Speaking later from the hotel balcony, he said:

"I ask you to prepare our Nation just the same as a baseball team prepares for the league season. The man who would say a baseball team needs no practice would be fit for an asylum. I want you to do for the Nation what any fifth-rate team in a fifth-rate league would do for itself."

"Enjoying Peace" With Mexico

Convention Hall was filled with a cheering crowd, each person waiving a small flag, when the colonel entered. A portion of the hall had been reserved for the Civil War veterans and it was principally to them that Col Roosevelt directed his remarks.

"We are told that we enjoy peace with Mexico," he said, in speaking of the republic to the south. "Eighteen years ago we had a war with Spain. The number of Americans killed in Mexico during this peace with Mexico surpassed the number of Americans killed in the war with Spain and when this war was through it was through, whereas peace continues to rage with unbated violence along the Mexican border."

Terrible Sacrifice if Attacked

Coming to the question of an invasion of American shores by a foreign force, he declared that if an army half the size of that which attacked the Dardanelles should invade this country, America will be at its mercy.

"If such an invasion took place," he said, "against it we would pit an army of ill-trained men—an army of about one-third the size of the invading army, untrained, badly armed and without the necessary artillery, and we would send the young sons of America to be butchered, to make good our failure to prepare in advance."

Roosevelt Calls on Hadley

After his convention hall address Col Roosevelt motored to the home of Herbert S. Hadley, ex-Governor of Missouri, for a visit. Mr Hadley was too ill to take his place on the reception committee and Col Roosevelt insisted upon calling upon him. It was declared later the call was purely social.

Col Roosevelt was entertained at dinner tonight by Mr and Mrs Irvin F. Kirkwood at the Kirkwood home. William Allen White, Progressive National Committeeman from Kansas, was the only other guest outside of Mr Kirkwood's family.

"ACID TEST" FOR BUSINESS MEN

"I shall never myself consent to an entangling alliance, but would gladly consent to a disentangling alliance, an alliance which would disentangle the peoples of the world from those combinations in which they seek their own separate and private interests, and unite the people of the world to preserve the peace of the world upon a basis of common right and justice."

For Universal Voluntary Training

Universal training and preparedness were possible, Mr Wilson declared, only if the men of suitable strength and age will volunteer. He said the "acid test" was about to be applied to business men to see whether they would allow their employes to volunteer. He said the Army Reorganization bill now before him bristled with that interrogation point which he warned all the business men of the country was staring them in the face.

The President said he was for "universal voluntary training," but that "America does not wish anything but the compulsion of the spirit of America." He added that the people of the nation were watching each other, and that a great many men, even when they did not want to, were going to stand up and say "Here."

New Crisis Upon the Nation

Interpreting the spirit of Memorial Day the President said:

"It was a singularly complete work that was performed by the processes of blood and iron at the time of the Civil War, and it is singular how the settlement has ruled our spirits since it was made. The Union was saved by the processes of the Civil War. That was a crisis which could be handled, it seems, in no other way. And there is at present upon us a crisis which seems to threaten to be a new crisis of division."

Pointing out that America is made up out of all the Nations of the world, the President said the war in Europe has done a very natural thing in America, in stirring the minds of men drawn from many of the belligerent stocks, when "they remember the Nations from which they were sprung and know that they are in this life and death grapple."

"We have no criticism for men who love the places of their birth and the sources of their origin," he continued. "From such springs of sentiment we all draw some of the handsomest inspirations of our lives.

America Must Come First

"But all we do criticise is that in some instances—they are not very numerous—but in some instances men have allowed this old ardor of another nationality to overcome their ardor for the nationality to which they have given their new and voluntary allegiance

"I have no harshness in my heart even for the extremists in this thing, but I summon them, and I summon them very solemnly, not to set their purpose against the purpose of America. America must come first in every purpose we entertain, and every man must count upon being cast out of our confidence, cast out even of our tolerance, who does not submit to that great ruling principle.

"We are not only ready to cooperate, but we are ready to fight against any aggression, whether from without or from within. But we must guard ourselves against the sort of aggression which would be unworthy of America. We are ready to fight for our rights when those rights are coincident with the rights of man and of humanity.

Wants No Entangling Alliance

"I said the other evening in another place that one of the principles which America held dear was that small and weak States had as much right to their sovereignty and independence as large and strong States. And I also said that I believed that the people of the United States were ready to become partners in any alliance of the Nations that would guarantee public right above selfish aggression.

"Some of the public prints have reminded me, as if I needed to be reminded, of what Gen Washington warned us against. He warned us against entangling alliances.

"I shall never myself consent to an entangling alliance, but I would gladly assent to a disentangling alliance, an alliance which would disentangle the peoples of the world from those combinations in which they seek their own separate and private interests and unite the people of the world to preserve the peace of the world upon a basis of common right and justice."

Business Men and Preparedness

"We have been engaged recently, my fellow citizens, in discussing the processes of preparedness. It is possible for the United States to get ready only if the men of suitable age and strength will volunteer to get ready.

"I heard the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce report the other evening on a referendum to 750 of the Chambers of Commerce of the United States upon the question of preparedness, and he reported that 99 per cent of them had voted in favor of preparedness.

"Very well, now we are going to apply the acid test to those gentlemen, and the acid test is this: Will they give the young men in their employment freedom to volunteer for this thing? I wish the referendum had included that, because that is of the essence of the matter.

"It is all very well to say that somebody else must prepare, but are the business men of this country ready themselves to lend a hand and sacrifice an interest in order that we may get ready? We shall have an answer to that question in the next few months.

"A bill is lying on my table now ready to be signed which bristles all over with that interrogation point, and I want all the business men of the country to see that interrogation point staring them in the face.

"I have heard a great many people talk about universal training—universal voluntary training, with all my heart, if you wish it—but America does not wish anything but the compulsion of the spirit of America.

"I, for my part, do not entertain any serious doubt of the answer to these questions, because I suppose there is no place in the world where the compulsion of public opinion is more imperative than it is in the United States.

"There never was such a blazing spotlight upon the conduct and principles of every American as each one of us now walks and blinks in it. And as this spotlight sweeps its rays across every square mile of the territory of the United States I know a great many men, even when they do not want to, are going to stand up and say 'Here!' because America is roused—roused to a self-consciousness and a National self-consciousness such as she had not had in a generation.

"And this spirit is going out conquering and to conquer until it may be, in the providence of God, a new light is lifted up in America which shall throw the rays of liberty and justice far abroad on every sea and even upon the lands which now wallow in darkness and refuse to see the light."

TWO ACCIDENTS IN EVERETT

Prof Frank W. Griffin of Malden Probably Fatally Injured—Charles Merley Slightly Injured

EVERETT, May 30—Two automobile accidents marred the holiday in this city, one this afternoon, when Charles Merley, 9 years old, was knocked down by an auto and slightly injured, and the other about 9:30 tonight, when Prof Frank W. Griffin, 61, of Malden, was run into by another auto on Hancock st, at the corner of Tappan st, and probably fatally injured.

Prof Griffin, who is single and an old resident of Malden, where for years he has taught music, living in "The Arbucle," at 156 Pleasant st, was returning home after spending the day with Mr and Mrs P. J. Connors of Broadway. On Hancock st an auto owned and operated by Wesley A. Bragdon of 25 Chestnut st, this city, was approaching from Malden, and Mr Griffin, who is very near-sighted, stepped from the sidewalk directly in front of the car.

He was knocked down and run over. Bragdon carried him to the plazza of the nearest house and called Dr Ralph W. McAllester, the city physician, who ordered Mr Griffin removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital, having found that he was suffering from a compound fracture of the left leg and probably a fractured skull. His name is on the dangerous list. Bragdon gave himself up to the police and was held pending developments.

The accident to the Merley boy occurred at the corner of Ferry and Union sts, where the child was playing with two other boys. George L. McMahon was driving his car along Ferry st toward Everett Spring when the Merley boy is said to have run directly in front of the auto. He was knocked down and the wheels passed over both legs just below the knees. He was picked up and carried to his home nearby, where it was found his injuries are only slight.

The car was operated by the owner, Arthur E. Honors of 259 Western av, and with him were Mrs Honors and a child and Miss Cora Bradstreet. The street car hit the automobile with much force, but the machine, instead of being toppled over, was pushed sideways along the tracks.

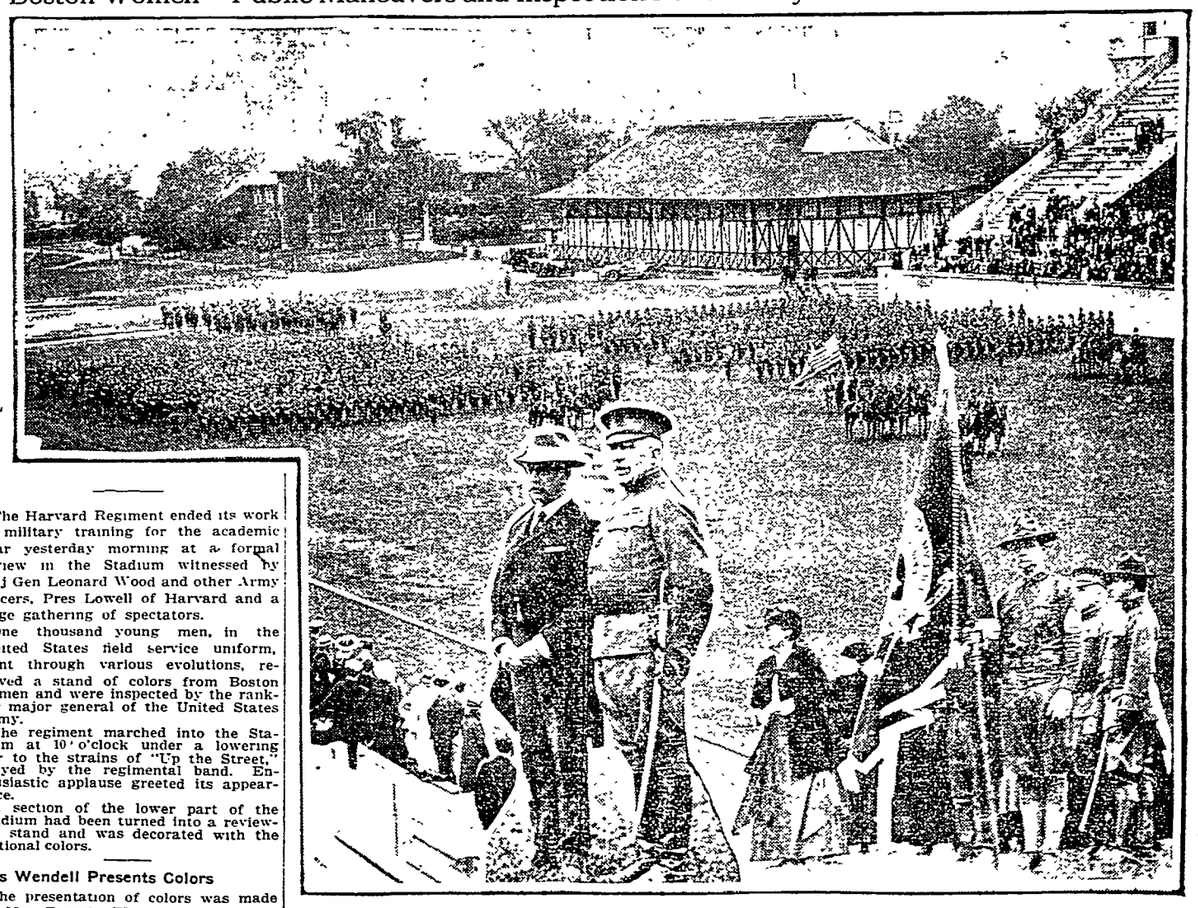
HARVARD REGIMENT IN FINAL REVIEW BEFORE GEN WOOD

College Military Organization Given Stand of Colors by Mrs Barrett Wendell Jr, on Behalf of Boston Women—Public Maneuvers and Inspection Followed by Disbandment for the Summer.



HARVARD REGIMENT SALUTING THE COLORS.

Scene in the Stadium on Soldiers Field yesterday during the final review and inspection of the college military organization. In the foreground are Maj Gen Leonard Wood and Pres Lowell. In the lower right-hand corner is the scene during the presentation of the colors by Mrs Barrett Wendell Jr.

The Harvard Regiment ended its work in military training for the academic year yesterday morning at a formal review in the Stadium witnessed by Maj Gen Leonard Wood and other Army officers, Pres Lowell of Harvard and a large gathering of spectators.

One thousand young men, in the United States field service uniform, went through various evolutions, received a stand of colors from Boston women and were inspected by the ranking major general of the United States Army.

The regiment marched into the Stadium at 10 o'clock under a lowering sky to the strains of "Up the Street," played by the regimental band. Enthusiastic applause greeted its appearance.

A section of the lower part of the Stadium had been turned into a reviewing stand and was decorated with the National colors.

Mrs Wendell Presents Colors

The presentation of colors was made by Mrs Barrett Wendell Jr, and the standards were received on behalf of the regiment by Pres Lowell. Then the whole regiment stood in salute as the Star Spangled Banner was played and the audience rose and uncovered. The regiment then marched out of the Stadium.

The next event on the program was the drill of four picked companies, who went through maneuvers in close order battalion formation, ending with the manual of arms.

Then came the drill of the prize company, Company D, which went through extended order drill, which consisted of a sort of mock battle, illustrating formations used in an actual charge. Here the Harvard ambulance corps, made up of medical students, did realistic work carrying off mock wounded.

Disbands for the Summer

Following the extended order drill the whole regiment was again drawn up in front of the reviewing stand, and Gen Wood made a personal inspection of the troops, passing from one company to the other and commending them as he went along.

A final march in review by the entire command closed the exercises.

The regiment then marched to the Yard for the Memorial Day exercises conducted by the Harvard Memorial Society. The procession was formed before the Widener Library at noon, veterans who are Harvard men leading the column. After the Harvard veterans came Francis Beck Post, G. A. R.; members of the faculty, guests and students. The marshals were: R. M. Jopling, '16; R. T. Twichell, '16, and R. N. Williams, '16, all of Cambridge.

The Harvard Regiment acted as escort to the doors of Memorial Hall and then disbanded for the year.

Of the 1000 men enrolled, 500, including nearly all the officers, will go to Plattsburg this Summer.
