Scout, Thrilled at President's Visit, Telephones Mother From Colorado

A 14-year-old Arlington Boy Scout was so excited yesterday that he called his mother long distance from Colorado to tell her that he was going to see the President.

Paul Hemenway, a tall, lanky boy who usually stays cool, was one of 56,176 boys who got excited when President Eisenhower visited the Fifth National Boy Scout Jamboree at Colorado Springs. His mother, Mrs. H. H. Hemenway, of 5022 S. Chesterfield rd., got excited, too, when her son called.

Paul and the 36 other boys of Arlington Jamboree Troop 78 had a special reason for enthusiasm. They were among the honor guard chosen to welcome the President as he arrived at the 2000-acre compound, dotted with 30,000 blue, green and yellow tents.

The President was in an ebullient mood as he rode through the hot, dry, wind-blown encampment that lies in the shadow of Pike's Peak. The temperature was more than 90 degrees in the shade.

through the vast tent city at a crawl speed, standing and giving his famous two-handed salute in response to youthful cheers of welcome.

"He looks pretty old," commented one scout about 12, after his prized view of the 69-year-old President.

But Mr. Eisenhower was feeling young. He stood in the blazing sun without faltering and took his seat only once during the 45-minute ride through the camp.

With so many Scouts on hand—including 650 from 28 foreign nations—it was impossible for the President to speak to them all. So he played fair by making no stops at all.

"It was a great privilege," a red-faced, dusty, perspiring President told Scout officials as he switched back to his air-conditioned limousine for the 70-mile trip back to Denver.

He and Mamie Eisenhower flew to Denver Wednesday to visit Mrs. Elivera Doud, the President's mother-in-law, who is 82 and seriously ill. They expect to fly back today or Saturday to Newport, R. I., where the President has been vacationing.

Nixon Vows Faith in Nation's Strength, Pledges an Unprecedented Campaign

Capital Signs Merger Pact With United

Vickers Agrees; Some Layoffs In Area Seen

Debt-ridden Capital Airlines will be merged into United Air Lines, according to an agreement announced here yesterday by heads of the two carriers.

If approved by United directors, stockholders of both firms and the Civil Aeronautics Board, the merger is expected to result in some, but not drastic layoffs among Capital's 3200 employees in the Washington area.

The proposal also would save Capital, the Nation's fifth largest airline, from impending bankruptcy. Directors of Vickers-Armstrongs, Ltd., which has sought foreclosure on virtually the entire fleet of Capital airplanes for an unpaid $33.8 million debt, approved the merger plan yesterday.

Only hours before, Capital's board had voted unanimously to accept the plan.

Yesterday's development represented a great personal victory for Thomas D. Neelands Jr. investment banker brought into Capital as board chairman May 19 in an attempt to rescue the airline.

Capital's board chairman engineered huge tri-cornered deal singlehandedly and for sentiment's sake, not money.

from impending receivership. Neelands negotiated the United deal and it acceptance by Vickers singlehandedly. He said last night he will now step out of the picture entirely.

United President W. A. Patterson, who announced the proposal jointly with Neelands, said his airline is putting $28.8 million cash into the deal. Neelands estimated that Vickers stands to lose about $9 million on the transaction.

The plan calls for Capital stockholders to receive one share of United common stock and a five-year warrant to buy one and one-half shares of United at $40 a share for each seven shares of Capital common stock. Capital closed at 8 1/2, up 1 1/2 yesterday; United, 30 1/4, up 1 3/4.

Holder of Capital's 4 1/2 percent convertible subordinated debentures would be offered 20 shares of United common stock for each $1000 principal amount of debentures.

There was speculation that the merger might make United, now the second largest domestic airline behind American Airlines, the nation's biggest. "I honestly don't know," Patterson answered when asked if this would be the case.

7 on Cuba DC-3 Ask U.S. Asylum

MIAMI, July 28 (UPI) The captain of a Cubana Airlines passenger plane held other members of his crew and a guard at gunpoint today while he flew the craft to Miami to seek political asylum.

Six of eight passengers joined Capt. Eduardo Ferrer in requesting admission to the United States, Edward P. Ahrens, chief immigration officer for the Miami District said.

The DC-3 had taken off from Havana at 6:15 a. m. bound for Oriente, Cuba. When it landed here, four adult passengers and two children joined him in seeking political asylum. Their names were withheld. The co-pilot, purser and two adult women passengers were to return to Cuba in the plane.

Fast-Acting Driver Saves Choking Boy

Mother's Cry Alerts Telephone Lineman Passing by in Auto

By Victoria Stone Staff Reporter

"It was a beautiful day and I was driving along inspecting the telephone lines, when all of a sudden I heard a lady crying 'mister, please help my child's dying!'"

Thus began the story of how Charles J. Bruchie saved the life of 2 1/2-year-old Lorin Engberson at 4218 Coleville rd., Hyattsville, yesterday.

Bruchie, 58, a cable foreman for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. of Maryland, who lives at 602 Sterling rd., Silver Spring continued: "I immediately stopped the car and took the child out of the lady's arms. It was blue and alive. I didn't know if it was limp or dead."

Then he described how he pried open Lorin's mouth, poked out a large chunk of canned pear and began applying mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until Lorin started breathing.

Bela Engberson, Lorin's mother, said she was cleaning the garage when her 13-year-old daughter, Ellen, found Lorin choking in the kitchen. "I hold him upside down, but I couldn't get my fingers in his mouth," the mother said.

Her voice still shaking, she added "I don't know where I'd be without that man. I don't even know his name, bless his heart." Mrs. Engberson and her husband Ray, a County 4-H agent, have seven children.

A passing policeman brought an ambulance which took the child to Leland Hospital. Lorin was released shortly, rosy and smiling again.

Bruchie commented finally, "I just happened to be going by at the right time."

Hammarskjold Arrives Amid Katanga Uproar

From News Dispatches LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo, July 28—United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold arrived here today in the middle of a new uproar over independence demands by the rich Congolese province of Katanga.

Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu announced tonight that he and his advisers "have made a certain decision" about the Province which contains 60 per cent of the Congo's wealth in minerals and other materials, United Press International reported.

Katanga Premier Moise Tshombe announced in Elisabethville, his capital, that he was sending a delegation to New York led by his foreign minister, Pierre Masangu, to defend Katanga's claim to independence.

Thus a number of Congolese cheered Hammarskjold as he sailed across the hyacinth-choked Congo River from Brazzaville in the Congo Republic, formerly the French Congo, the Associated Press reported.

"Long Live the Free Congo!" Congolese youths shouted in French, the working language of the former Belgian colony. "Down with the Belgians! Down with Colonialists!" Hoisted placards assailed Tshombe. "We demand a United Congo," the placards said. "Down with Tshombe!"

Tshombe, in Elisabethville, showed no intention of falling. He insisted today he wants no U. N. troops in Katanga. With the Belgians behind him and copper mine revenues to back him, he can make or break the Republic if he gets his way.

Tshombe warned opposition leader Prosper Mwamba that See CONGO, A5, Col. 5

Titan Misfires, Plunges in Sea

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., July 28 (AP) — First-stage engine trouble sent a giant Titan missile plunging into the Atlantic off Cape Canaveral today shortly after it was launched on a 5000-mile test flight.

It was the second straight failure for the operational prototype of this intercontinental range rocket.

The 98-foot missile blasted off smoothly at 5:38 (EDT). An hour later the Air Force said "preliminary indications are that premature first-stage engine shutdown caused the Titan to impact in the water off the Cape." Second-stage ignition was not achieved.

Kennedy, Nixon to Debate on TV; NBC Offers 8 One-Hour Periods

By Carroll Kilpatrick Staff Reporter HYANNIS PORT, Mass., July 28—Democratic presidential candidate John F. Kennedy today accepted a proposal to debate his Republican opponent in a series of television programs.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon earlier this week had expressed his willingness to take part in such a debate and his press secretary, Herbert G. Klein, said in Chicago today that he assumed the series would be set up.

The candidates were invited by Robert W. Sarnoff, NBC board chairman, to join in a "great debate" in a series of "eight full hours of prime evening time" on NBC radio and television. Sarnoff's telegram to the candidates said the plan was to devote four programs of an hour each to joint discussion of the issues. Four other one-hour programs would be scheduled for questioning of the candidates by panels of newsmen.

[The Associated Press reported from New York that Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson and CIA Director Allen Dulles agree that Communists have failed to make communism an election issue. Page A2.]

CBS and ABC also expressed readiness to offer prime schedule time for such debates. Both networks said the plan depended on an amendment or waiver by Congress of Section 315 of the Communications Act so as not to require equal time for splinter-party opponents.]

This was another part-vacation but mostly work day for the Democratic candidate, who held a press conference, met with Sen. Henry M. Jackson (Wash.), new chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and gave a party to celebrate Mrs. Kennedy's 31st birthday.

Kennedy congratulated Nixon on his nomination "and on the support he has achieved from his own party."

Kennedy had words of praise for Republican vice presidential nominee Henry Cabot Lodge, whom the Democratic candidate retired from the Senate in the Eisenhower-landslide year of 1952. Kennedy also said he had high respect for the President's popular following.

Laughingly, he said he wished he had Mr. Eisenhower's support in this campaign but had the impression "he is already committed."

"I think he is very helpful to Mr. Nixon," Kennedy said in answer to a question as to whether the President would be a factor in the campaign. Kennedy called Lodge, the former Massachusetts Senator. See KENNEDY, A2, Col. 2

Lodge Given 2d Place By Unanimous Vote; Stresses Arms Buildup

U. N. Aide Speaks On Facing Foreign Policy Problems

By Robert C. Albright Staff Reporter

CHICAGO, July 28—Former Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, United States Ambassador to the United Nations, tonight was unanimously nominated for Vice President on a foreign policy-oriented GOP ticket headed by Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The nominee promptly promised to help build up the military strength of the United States.

The 58-year-old, 6-foot-3 former Senator accepted the nomination in a speech warning of the Soviet challenge and supporting a Party platform which he said "guarantees that no nation will ever attack us."

Lodge flew here from New York to take his place beside Nixon on the 1960 Republican ticket a few hours after Nixon personally selected him at a nocturnal conference with 35 top Party leaders.

Lodge's name was placed in nomination by 61-year-old Rep. Walter Judd (Minn.), whose keynote speech Monday night touched off a vice presidential boom for himself.

Judd lauded Lodge as "a man of wide experience and demonstrated competence," whose qualities had been tested in the crucible of the United Nations.

A lively, shouting 12-minute demonstration immediately broke out on the convention floor. Large white placards, bearing the single name, "Lodge," were displayed all over the floor, as the band played "Yankee Doodle."

The Massachusetts standard started a parade around the floor, and a simulated flying See TICKET, A12, Col. 1

Chicago Conclave Winds Up With Acceptance Talks

By Edward T. Folliard Staff Reporter

CHICAGO, July 28 Richard M. Nixon opened his bid for the presidency tonight with a fighting speech in which he promised to wage "a campaign such as this country has never seen before."

In accepting the nomination for President which he won last night, the 47-year-old Californian sent a thrill through the Republican National Convention when he said:

"This campaign begins tonight." Nixon offered himself as the man to lead America in solving new and challenging problems of "utmost gravity" and to deal with rocket-rattlers like Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

He said that the next President "must resolve above all that the United States must never settle for second place in anything."

The nominee expressed his conviction that America is the strongest nation in the world and reiterated his faith in its future.

Praises Eisenhower Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who for months was harshly criticizing the Eisenhower-Nixon Administration, introduced the presidential nominee tonight after getting an ovation himself.

New System Faster, Cheaper Smithsonian to Freeze-Dry Animals For More Lifelike Preservation

By Philip R. Mayhew Staff Reporter The Smithsonian Institution has adopted a young California zoologist's process for freezing and dehydrating animal specimens that preserves the animals in remarkably lifelike condition.

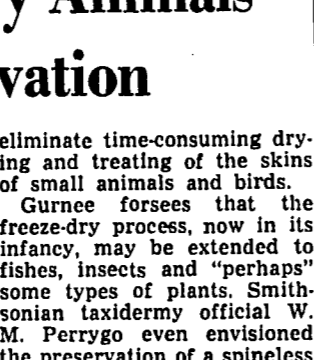

Jon Gurnee, who expanded on an idea of Dr. Harold T. Meryman, of the Naval Medical Research Institute at Bethesda, deep freezes a newly dead animal and then dries out its tissues in a vacuum chamber. The water in the animal's tissues is removed to a condenser coil by low pressure.

The dehydrated animal is exactly like the original in shape and form. All its internal organs are preserved so there is no distortion when exhibited. The animal can be "reconstituted" for study or dissection by adding water.

In addition to being more lifelike, "instant" animals and birds save storage space and eliminate time-consuming drying and treating of the skins of small animals and birds.

Gurnee foresees that the freeze-dry process, now in its infancy, may be extended to fishes, insects and "perhaps" some types of plants. Smithsonian taxidermy official W. M. Perrygo even envisioned the preservation of a spineless jellyfish by freezing it in a block of ice and then evaporating the ice.

Demonstrating its faith in the freeze-dry process, the Smithsonian has hired Gurnee and asked him to collaborate with Dr. Meryman on a set of specifications for a preservation unit. The museum hopes to have it in operation within a few weeks.

Johnson, Dulles Slap Red Moves

JOHNSON CITY, Texas, July 28 (AP)—The Democratic vice presidential nominee and the head of the Central Intelligence Agency agreed today that Communists have failed to make communism an issue between the United States parties in this election year.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson and CIA Director Allen Dulles made the statement at Johnson's ranch home near here following a top-secret briefing given the nominee by Dulles on world conditions. Dulles was an overnight guest at Johnson's ranch.

The two would discuss only generally the subject of the briefing. However, when Johnson was asked in a following press conference why Communists have stepped up their pressure on the free world recently, he replied:

"As revealed in the Summit Conference, the Communists launched a two-pronged offensive to divide us from our Allies and to split us among ourselves. They realize this election year is an opportunity to play on people's prejudices, and have tried to balance the scales to their advantage.

"Both objectives have failed. We are more united than ever. One thing the Nation is united on—both parties are determined to have no part of communism."

Dulles spoke up and added, "I think that is an excellent answer to that particular question."

In a written statement discussing his talk with Dulles, Johnson also said, "I think it should be made crystal clear to the masters of the Communist world that there is no division in America when it comes to the question of communism."

Dulles said the briefing touched on the Berlin situation, the Congo, Cuba and other critical areas of the world. He did not elaborate.

Johnson will leave the Austin Airport Friday morning to fly to Hyannis Port, Mass., for campaign planning talks with the presidential nominee, Sen. John F. Kennedy. En route, he will stop at Kansas City for a luncheon date with former President Harry S. Truman.

Johnson said he would talk with Kennedy about the coming session of Congress. He said the remaining work for the Senate includes two appropriation bills, a minimum wage proposal and a medical plan for the aged.

Labor Dept. Challenges Union Vote

United Press International

The Labor Department yesterday filed its first suit challenging a union election under terms of the Landrum-Griffin Labor Reform Law.

Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell brought the action in United States District Court in Newark, N. J., asking that an election of officers last February by the Independent Petroleum Workers Union of Bayway, N. J., be set aside.

The union represents workers at the Esso Standard Oil Co.'s refinery at Linden, N. J. Mitchell charged that the ballot box was freely accessible to anyone having the correct combination to the lock. He also alleged ballots were taken from the post office box by representatives of the winning candidate before any of the losers had arrived, and prior to the agreed time for ballot collection.

The suit filed by the Labor Department also claimed that ballots were printed in "substantial excess" of those required for the election, and that ballots were removed from the printer's packages before the time necessary for mailing.

Ike's Message to Nominees Warns Of Struggle, but Predicts Victory

DENVER, July 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower said tonight the Nixon-Lodge ticket faces a struggle "right down to Election Day," but he predicted victory for the Republican candidates.

The President sent a congratulatory telegram to Richard M. Nixon, the GOP presidential nominee, and Henry Cabot Lodge, Nixon's running mate. The Eisenhower message was sent off to the candidates at the Chicago convention as soon as it became clear that Lodge would be unopposed for the vice-presidential nomination.

The formal balloting for Lodge, now Ambassador to the United Nations, still was in progress when the President's telegram was made public. Mr. Eisenhower is resting here for a few days.

The text of the President's telegram: "Dear Dick and Cabot: Heartiest congratulations. I am proud to join with the delegates at the convention in applauding the selection of such a strong and experienced Republican national ticket. It has real stature.

"The task before you will be great, but both of you have faced and conquered difficult assignments before. Your combined wisdom and knowledge of the affairs of government, both at home and abroad, will be a telling factor in the campaign that lies ahead.

tor, "a very able figure . . . a formidable opponent."

Kennedy himself spoke of "a hard-fought campaign." He has said before that the race would be a tough one. The candidate probably remembered his Wisconsin primary experience, where his supporters expressed tremendous optimism and Kennedy did less well than expected. In the West Virginia primary, Kennedy expressed pessimism and snowed Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.).

Jackson even talked about carrying 50 states in November. He put in a tentative claim to Maine and Vermont, the only states which went Republican in 1936.

Later, however, Jackson said the strategy would be to "run scared."

Republicans are "vulnerable" in all the states, Jackson said after a lengthy conference with the candidate. "In all candor, they are all open to us."

Jackson flatly predicted that New York, with its 45 electoral votes, will go Democratic. "New Yorkers will not vote for Nixon," the Washington State Senator said.

Asked if he were relying on polls, Jackson said the best "poll" was the June 28 North Dakota election in which Democratic Rep. Quentin Burdick defeated Republican Gov. John E. Davis for the Senate.

Jackson conceded that there were factional problems in New York and California that bothered Democrats, but he said he expected understandings to be reached.

Boys Nation Delegates Get Pentagon Briefing

The 98 delegates to the 1960 American Legion Boys Nation received a briefing on United States defense yesterday from the armed services Chiefs of Staff.

The boys toured the Pentagon, talked with the service leaders, and then went into their final "Senate" session in the Old Supreme Court Chamber at the Capitol.

After considerable discussion, the boys rejected by a unanimous voice vote a proposal to establish a National Science Academy similar to the Air, Navy, and Army Academies.

They also unanimously approved a motion to repeal the 22nd Constitutional amendment which limits a president to two terms in office. Each of these is an actual bill before Congress.

Last night the boys heard the American Legion National Chaplain, Rabbi Robert Kahn of Houston, Tex., say that while the USSR has a constitution and a "bill of rights," it does not have real democracy because it does not recognize "the fundamental rights of man."

Today the boys will exchange souvenirs and begin packing for home. The session ends Saturday.
